ABOUT CHRISTINA

Christina Taylor has more than 15 years of experience in management and leadership, public health, evaluation, and community engagement. Christina completed her Master of Public Health degree at the Colorado School of Public Health and her BA in Anthropology from the University of Maryland.

Christina previously served as the Women and Infant Health Program Manager for the State of Wyoming, where she launched the Wyoming Perinatal Quality Collaborative and spearheaded several other statewide efforts to improve perinatal health. Prior to that, Christina worked in HIV health equity in North Carolina and occupational disease research in Denver. Christina also ran a child care home in Loveland for more than 4 years.

Christina has lived all over the country (from coast to coast), but has always considered Colorado home. She lives here in Fort Collins with her two daughters, Piper and Olivia, their dog Seamus and their cat Luna. When not working, Christina loves to travel, hike, camp, and seek out adventure in all things. Adventures with her kiddos are the absolute best.
