ABOUT JAMIE

Jamie Stewart joined the Early Childhood Council in October of 2022 as an Early Childhood Coach. Jamie was born and raised in New Mexico before moving to Colorado 5 years ago. Her Early Childhood journey began when she was a teenager and participated in a mission trip to Antigua. This trip guided her path in the early childhood field. She earned a Bachelor degree in Early Childhood Education from the University of New Mexico while simultaneously acting in roles of teacher and then Director in the same Center for 22 years.

Since moving to Colorado she has continued to work in both private and public early childhood programs serving in roles of both teacher and director. Jamie is beyond excited in her new position with the council where she can actively support and advocate for early childhood programs, teachers, families and professionals.

In her free time she enjoys spending time with her husband & three kids doing a little of everything. They enjoy exploring new spots and events, as well as scenic drives and walks. At home. Jamie loves to cook, craft, and garden.
